

Destination Dining

Enjoy a Bounty of Satisfying New Restaurants
in Napa and Sonoma
Counties

Despite the seemingly endless setbacks for restaurants over the past two years, Sonoma and Napa counties remain steadfast in their commitment to culinary greatness. The restaurant scene in both counties has seen an abundance of changes, and while many have mourned the loss of restaurants gone, the turnover has made way for new restaurants equipped with experienced and longstanding local chefs and staff, the very best in fresh and local produce, and of course a seemingly endless variety of ways to imbibe—from local wine to craft beer to artisan cocktails. Whether living locally or visiting from out of town, those dining in Sonoma and Napa counties have an insatiable appetite for good food and drink, and wine country diners can expect nothing less than the greatness from this impressive list of new and returning restaurants.

Kitchen Door >> The highly anticipated grand reopening of Kitchen Door in its new First Street Napa location (moved from The Oxbow) is set for early 2022. California classics with an Asian-inspired flare grace this local staple's menu. The restaurant is known for its Korean-style chicken wings and creamy mushroom soup, and locals are especially eager to bring their families back to this adored local establishment. Executive Chef Todd Humphries will bring back classic Kitchen Door favorites to the menu and offer new takes on cuisine as well.

